The Old And New Hollywood of Peter Bogdanovich This Week! Thur., August 6 - Sun., August 9, 2015 Aero Theatre · 1328 Montana Ave Santa Monica, CA · 90403 Like his mentor Howard Hawks, Peter Bogdanovich has made a career out of intelligent, varied entertainments that have two things in common: a of Preston Sturges and Ernst Lubitsch to contemporary settings with a self-assured ease. Lubitsch is quoted at length in SHE'S FUNNY THAT WAY, a tale of misdirected affection with Owen Wilson and Imogen Poots leading a superb ensemble cast. Set in the orbit of a Broadway theater director, the new romantic comedy confirms that a film directed by Peter Bogdanovich remains sure-fire entertainment.

film, while PAPER MOON played like a Depression-era road movie. If his flair for period films is well known, Bogdanovich doesn't need vintage love of humanity and a deep sense of the craft of film. Few directors are as well-versed in cinema history; NICKELODEON was a love letter to silent costumes and production design to evoke the spirit of Old Hollywood. WHAT'S UP DOC? and THEY ALL LAUGHED bring the screwball shenanigans Series also includes the recent documentary ONE DAY SINCE YESTERDAY: PETER BOGDANOVICH AND THE LOST AMERICAN FILM.

We are thrilled to welcome Peter Bogdanovich to the Aero Theatre! He will appear with the Friday and Sunday night programs.

WHAT'S UP, DOC? 1972, Warner Bros., 94 min, USA, Dir: Peter Bogdanovich

A luggage mix-up leads to stuffy academic Ryan O'Neal being taken on a wild ride by free spirit Barbra Streisand in this outrageous farce. Working from a precise and hilarious script by Buck Henry, David Newman and Robert Benton, director Peter Bogdanovich crafts a tribute to 1930s screwball comedies that is fast, funny and packed with delirious supporting performances; Madeline Kahn is a standout in her screen debut. THE LAST PICTURE SHOW 1971, Sony Repertory, 118 min, USA, Dir: Peter Bogdanovich

Jeff Bridges, Timothy Bottoms and Cybill Shepherd star as a trio of teens. A hugely entertaining slapstick farce and heartfelt Valentine to the trapped in a dying, dust-blown town. Flawlessly directed by Peter Bogdanovich and photographed by Robert Surtees, with a letter-perfect bumbling young lawyer who accidentally stumbles into directing, Burt supporting cast led by Ben Johnson (Best Supporting Actor Oscar winner), Cloris Leachman (Best Supporting Actress Oscar winner) and Ellen Burstyn.

earliest days of the Hollywood movie industry. Ryan O'Neal stars as the Reynolds is the hot-tempered leading man, Tatum O'Neal is the brains behind the operation, and lovely Jane Hitchcock is the object of everyone's affections. Co-starring John Ritter, Stella Stevens and Brian Keith.

deliver deeply romantic insights about love, marriage and regret. John Ritter and Ben Gazzara work for the Odyssey Detective Agency, a firm where the investigators are more concerned with their own complicated love lives than with solving any cases. Audrey Hepburn and Dorothy Stratten co-star in this hilarious ensemble dramedy, a film that Quentin Tarantino declared one of the 10 greatest ever made.

adapted from the Paul Theroux novel and features Ben Gazzara as an easygoing, expatriate American pimp in Vietnam-era Singapore. Exceptionally authentic location atmosphere highlights this fascinating character study. With Denholm Elliott, Joss Ackland and George More Info into gear when Broadway director Owen Wilson takes a fancy to call girl-turned-actress Imogen Poots and casts her in his latest play - along with his wife (Kathryn Hahn) and her ex (Rhys Ifans). Jennifer Aniston, Will Forte and a host of cameos too good to spoil here add to the romantic chaos in this effervescent comedy. "It's a hysterical screwball fantasia that openly steals from Lubitsch, Hawks, Capra and Sturges and wants to be caught with its fingers in the till. The result is a highly sexed Jenga-pile of silliness, to which Bogdanovich can't resist adding block after teetering block." - Robbie Collin, The Telegraph. Plus! At The Egyptian Theatre This Month:

When Peter Bogdanovich's highly personal THEY ALL LAUGHED got short himself; while not a box office hit, the romantic comedy's reputation has risen steadily over the years. This work-in-progress documentary, re-edited since its Venice Film Festival premiere, takes an affectionate look at an underseen gem and illuminates its place in Bogdanovich's filmography. More Info
